I am pleased to recommend Arya Kadarkar, who worked in my team during his internship at Fortune Business Insights. While Arya reported to one of my team leads as per our hierarchy, I had multiple opportunities to review his work and observe his contributions across several market research projects. Throughout his tenure, Arya consistently demonstrated strong analytical skills, professionalism, and a proactive approach to learning.

During his internship, Arya independently authored over 30–40 Report Descriptions (RDs) on topics spanning the ICT and semiconductor industries. These assignments required comprehensive secondary research, synthesis of technical data, and preparation of client-ready summaries, tasks which he executed with attention to detail. He also played a supporting role in three major full cycle projects, where he collaborated with senior analysts/team lead.

Arya further distinguished himself with his proficiency in Microsoft Office tools. He efficiently handled the tasks assigned.

Even as an intern, he demonstrated a keen interest in understanding the broader market context and frequently contributed thoughtful inputs during discussions. This willingness to go beyond assigned tasks elevated the value of his work.

In summary, Arya's analytical mindset and collaborative spirit make him well-suited for any academic or professional opportunity. I am confident that he will be an asset to whichever institution or organization he joins.

Sincerely,
